

My husband is an over-the-road trucker. He uses the traffic and weather channels to get around dangerous weather and bad traffic. The weather channels are VERY helpful when he is traveling thru the mountain passes in the winter. Before he had to call me and I would go on NOAA to check out the weather in a specific area. I know we all want truckers talking on the phone and driving on slippery passes at the same time. (NOT) The traffic channels have steered him around accidents and road closures so he could make his deliveries on time and avoid adding to the tie ups. By doing this he spews less hydro carbons into the air and lowers the pollutants.
